In this lecture, Nancy V. Webster will present the culture of the Lenape Indians prior to the arrival of Europeans and the history of early interactions with Europeans, including Quakers.

Nancy is the curator of the Friends Historical Association, a member of Swarthmore Meeting, and a 14th generation Friend born and living in Lenapehoking.

Having spent 32 years as the regional historical and cultural preservation planner, she has been using her professional planning expertise to assist indigenous nations with such problems as water rights, fishing rights, Superfund sites, and other intrusions. Her last work was at Standing Rock, and she is currently assisting First Nations on Athabaskan pipeline issues.
